

The Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has been a wonderful relief from receiving pesky calls from telemarketers. I used to receive a phone call between 6-6:30 three nights a week and when I would answer it the other party would hang up or be delayed 5 seconds on responding. This is clearly unwarranted. If I had my choice I would strengthen the law to include companies conducting surveys. I do not appreciate being disturbed at home. Does anyone enjoy receiving these calls?
